Powell Sustainability Studio

Over the past 3 weeks, students in the City and Regional Graduate Program's Planning for Sustainable Development Studio have been identifying and defining what it means for Powell to be a sustainable community. Working in support of the Columbus Area Planning process, they are investigating this topic with respect to three main areas:

1. Land Use and Urban Ecology
2. Energy and Waste Reduction
3. Economic Development and Social Equity

Our purpose in convening this meeting is to provide Powell residents with an overview of our project and gain valuable insight from community members regarding our work.

In order to guide our study, we have developed the following working definition of a sustainable Powell:

In a sustainable Powell, citizens and their government integrate environmental, social, and economic considerations into decision making so that current and future residents and visitors experience a vibrant and accessible community.

Powell will do this through enhancement of ecological health and welfare, economic vitality, social equality, and the overall improvement in the quality of life.
